Since its premiere in 2011, it has thus evolved into Europe's leading event for preventive fire protection," explain Stefan Dittrich, Director FeuerTrutz, NürnbergMesse and Günter Ruhe, Managing Director of the FeuerTrutz Network. With 60 international companies (41 in 2018), representing 21 countries (15 in 2018), FeuerTrutz 2019 is also reinforcing the trend in recent years towards a more international focus. For the first time, overseas companies will also be making a joint appearance. In collaboration with the Eastern European umbrella association ECEU FIRE, four Ukrainian companies will have their own pavilion.

Training and career opportunities at FeuerTrutz

The performance of the fire protection sector is closely associated with the building industry, which is currently experiencing a boom. Accordingly, fire protection planning firms, fire safety agencies, manufacturers and installers are looking for skilled personnel with relevant expertise. The FeuerTrutz Job Board lists the latest job vacancies posted by exhibitors, while visitors can also publish "situations wanted" ads. The platform is available online at feuertrutz-messe.de/jobboard and at the venue in Hall 10.1. Newcomers to the industry and fire safety professionals seeking further training need look no further than the Training & Career Meeting Point in Hall 10.1, which presents 16 training and professional development providers.

Informative compact seminars and international workshop

The compact seminars “BRANDSCHUTZDIREKT Löschtechnik” (on extinguishing technology) and “Fire protection in Bavaria” are an additional source of information at FeuerTrutz. The spotlight is on the role of sprinklers and extinguishing equipment to achieve fire protection goals as well as the changes in Bavarian fire protection regulations that affect architects and official agency representatives. The “German Fire Protection” Workshop is designed to provide international participants with an overview of preventive fire protection in Germany.

Get the knowledge edge at the Fire Protection Congress

Whether technical developments, new standards or harmonisation efforts at the European level – fire protection is a complex discipline that is constantly evolving. It is therefore absolutely essential for fire protection designers to actively engage with the latest fire protection issues. The Fire Protection Congress offers them and other fire safety experts the ideal platform for doing so. More than 35 speakers will inform the some 1,450 delegates about issues such as fire protection concepts for special buildings, how the German states are dealing with the MVV-TB (Model Administrative Provisions - Technical Building Code), questions on technical regulations like the Model Industrial Building Code 2019, the latest legislative developments and the discussion about the second escape route. Delegates are awarded points by many professional bodies for attending and can download the presentations afterwards online as webcasts.

FeuerTrutz After Work Party

The fully booked evening event at FeuerTrutz takes place at the Max Morlock Stadium this year. Over regional cuisine and gin tasting, the focus is on networking after the first day of the fair.

in the future along with the industry. The modern facilities offer the necessary capacities and will also allow us to further expand the supporting programme,” explains Stefan Dittrich, Director FeuerTrutz at NürnbergMesse. “As the congress was consistently fully booked in recent years we can now better meet the high demand. At the same time, the relocation will provide new opportunities to incorporate topics of future impact with dedicated formats into the supporting programme. Nevertheless, FeuerTrutz will remain true to itself and will continue to focus 100% on preventive fire protection!” says Günter Ruhe, Managing Director of the FeuerTrutz Network.
