PRESS RELEASE

January 2021

Perimeter Protection: restructured and highly motivated team starts preparing for next event

With a new team in charge, the international trade fair for perimeter protection, fencing technology and building security will take place for the seventh time on 18 to 20 January 2022 at Exhibition Centre Nuremberg.

Perimeter Protection starts its next cycle with a new team at the helm. As a result of internal restructuring at NürnbergMesse, changes were made to the exhibition team in April last year. A familiar face is Hanna Hauser, who will continue in her role as manager. The team now welcomes Frank Venjakob as exhibition director and Christin Gmelch, who will be responsible for customer acquisition. Julia Urban, who will handle the organisation and liaise with registered exhibitors, has also joined the team. Since the beginning of the year Thomas Preutenborbeck has been the new head of the unit, which means he is also part of the NürnbergMesse Management Board. He is well acquainted with the trade fair and was also its exhibition director in 2014.

Greater reach for drone technology

As of 2021, NürnbergMesse plans to establish closer links between its “unmanned technologies” segment and other trade fairs. Instead of being exclusive to Enforce Tac, as it has been until now, U.T.SEC will in future also be able to present itself as a corresponding platform at other relevant events. The integration of U.T.SEC@Perimeter Protection as a new platform into Perimeter Protection will therefore give the drone detection and defence segment a greater reach.

Specialist forum at Perimeter Protection offers added value

Organised in partnership with VfS (German Association for Security Technology), the specialist forum will take place again in 2022 with a host of interesting presentations. On all three days of the event, the forum will again provide an opportunity to discuss the latest topics of interest, innovative
